NEW WOOD: Thanks to Frank Harding for the following information on this wood, which is printed in green and shown below. I quote from Frank's letter: "I was down to Regina to their Coin and Stamp Show and while there I visited their new Antique Mall where about 20 dealers have taken over a 2 story warehouse. There is a girl in charge and all the dealers are not present but things are marked and can be paid for as long as you don't want to haggle the price. I saw these wooden nickels and asked what they were charging for them and was informed they were free so managed to get three. The only one I have left is in my collection. The Mall is advertised in The Western Producer (a weekly farm newspaper) and the copy for two ads appear below. I do not know the woods availability by mail." Thanks Frank.

FROM SILVER TO PAPER TO WOOD

Monday October 19 was a dark day in the annuls of affluent America. Through the process of Osmosis billions of paper dollars on Wall Street evaporated into thin air. No one knows for sure just where they disappeared. Some say that a strong draft from the "Black Hole" off Bermuda siphoned them into oblivion. Others believe that Ole North may have shredded them in the basement of the Whitehouse.

The same thing happened back in 1929 when I was a sophomore in a little farm village in Nebraska. I was told then that when the banks closed the government moved in with grocery carts gathered up all the silver Morgan dollars and paid off the national debt.

My father was a preacher during that depression and had a family of eight. Even so, we had faith for we knew that it was written that the Lord would provide. It was about that time that we started to raise poultry, on the side, and as prophecy dictated we managed eight different recipies consisting of mashed potatoes and chicken and noodle stew. For desert we shared apples from the parishers orchards.

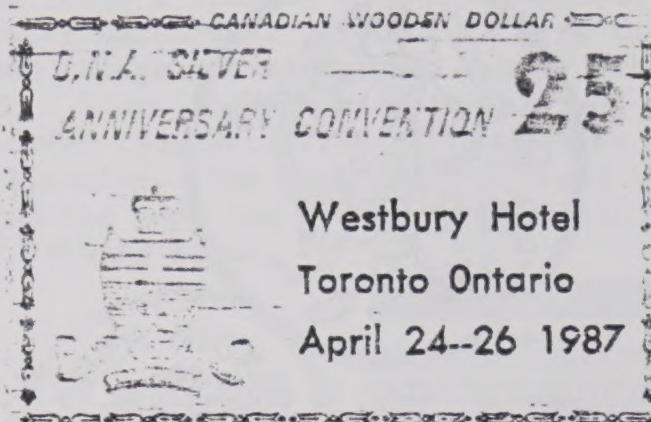

Following the reeent stock market crash pension funds came under great duress. The "Feds" started to manufacture huge quantities of paper money to stabalize the crisis.

It was only then that I started to inventory my "Whooping Crane" wooden nickels. I remembered that in 1930 Tenino, Washington gained world wide fame by issuing "legal wooden money." On this same "black Monday" all 133 of the famous Whooping Cranes were due in from Canada. I remembered that a New Jersey bank had foreclosed on the Whooping Crane excursion boat and we set about to run up the coast to check on the situation.

Much to our surprise we found a new 150 passenger cruiser at anchor at the launch site. The new captain was equally surprised when I handed him the 1987 Jean LaFitte/ Whooping crane wooden nikkel for across the bow of the new ship was the title JEAN LAFITTE. In return for the wooden nickel we were the recipients of two compimentary $20.00 tickets to their maiden voyage into whooping crane country. It occurred to me on this black Monday that $40.00 transportation for a one cent wood was a fair exchange

FROM SILVER TO PAPER TO WOOD is a short article by Glen Littrell. You will note the theme surrounds the October 19, 1987 - Black Monday stock market crash. There are references to two things close to Glen: wooden nickels and whooping cranes.

QUEBEC CITY COIN CLUB ISSUES WOOD FOR 1987 BANQUET by Jerry Remick:

The Societe Numismatique de Quebec issued 100 numbered round woods for their annual banquet held on October 17, 1987 in Ste. Foy on the outskirts of Quebec City. A wood was given to each person attending the banquet as an identification piece for the draw of a dozen door prizes. Jim Deluney of Angus, Ontario made the wood in the cold stamp process using blue ink. One side shows the attractive crest of the Societe Numismatique de Quebec which was used as the crest of Quebec City from 1833-1949. The other side shows the following inscription: "Banquet / Annuel de / LA S.N.Q. / 17 October 1987 / No. 3" "3" is the number of the wood pictured below. Specimens are available at $1.00 postpaid from La Societe Numismatique de Quebec, Box 281, Sillery, Quebec G1T 2R1 Canada.

AN ASSORTMENT OF CHRISTMAS WOOD: The only information I have on availability is the wood from Don Bahuaud of Box 268, Pierson, Manitoba ROM 1SO which he made 50 and will trade for your Christmas wood or he will sell at 50¢ plus SASE.
